MOTOR CAR OWNERS OPPOSE EXCISE TAX

Law Would Interfere with the Sale of Automobiles --- Would Mean "Red Tape"

BY J. C. KERRISON

The placing of an excise tax upon motor vehicles, as proposed by the laws suggested by Tax Commissioner Henry S. Long, does not by any means meet with the approval of the motor car owners, even though it may have the support, as naturally it would, of the assessors of the various towns and cities throughout the State.

The working of the proposed law would have a tendency to interfere with the sale of automobiles, and place upon the shoulders of a purchaser certain conditions not encountered in any other line of trade. It is the opinion of the motor car owners that the proposed law would be a hindrance to the sale of automobiles, and that the motor car owners are not getting the money they require from the automobile industry. According to the motor car owners, the proposed law would be a hindrance to the sale of automobiles, and that the motor car owners are not getting the money they require from the automobile industry.

The money thus raised would go to general revenue, and would not necessarily be used for road construction work. The argument used by the motor car owners is that the automobile has brought a great deal of expense to local communities in the way of upkeep of roads, and these communities are not getting the money they require from the automobile industry. According to the motor car owners, the proposed law would be a hindrance to the sale of automobiles, and that the motor car owners are not getting the money they require from the automobile industry.

This, of course, is a far-fetched idea. The general practice gives to place all the blame for increased cost of city, town and State operations upon the motorists. The fact is that they are not paying their share of expenses. The motorists do not agree with any such idea. They contend they are now paying a property tax on their motor vehicles, and they are paying a State fee for both operation and registration of motor vehicles, and what is equally important to communities is the decided increase in taxable property made possible and produced only as a result of motor vehicle usage.

To date the increased real estate tax on private and public garages alone is well worth considering in view of the fact that in one town alone has been profited to a considerable degree by the use of motor vehicles. It would seem rather unfair to place a tax of $25 per thousand on a car of a certain horsepower and another rate on a car of a different horsepower, particularly if the rate in either instance specified was different from the tax rate of the town in which the owner of the motor vehicle resided.

The passage of such a measure through the State Legislature will be fought in every stage, and should it be enacted there is still left the question of referendum. Those interests which were opposed to the gasoline tax are likewise opposed to this so-called excise tax, and with the means at their disposal will undoubtedly be successful in securing the necessary signatures for a referendum, so that the measure could not become a law for the next two years.

As a matter of fact, the motor interests of today are more determined than ever to prevent an increased tax unless they are assured that the money derived from that taxation is devoted exclusively to highway construction and will not be diverted to other work, as has been done in the past two or three years. The motorists are not so much opposed to increased taxation as they are to the diverting of money received thereby to other than good roads causes, which practice seems to have been followed out to a greater or less degree in the last two years.

Recognition of three separate and distinct markets is made by the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, controlling to a large extent its policy manufacturing, according to Mr. Harry M. Jewett, president.

Mr. Jewett, in several addresses before dealer bodies, at the time of the announcement of a new Jewett Six, dwelt at length on the distinction between these three markets. The Jewett Six, which was started in 1916 with less than three quarters million dollars capital investment, has grown into a $15,000,000 business.
